In this story centered game, Kara is a young woman who was wrongfully accused of killing her father. As a result, her life changed entirely and she lost her ability to use the powers of the elements. Nevertheless, she carries deep feelings of guilt in her heart and resents the world. Under these circumstances, she is drawn to find her way across a mysterious land which is inhabited by strange and different people. In this world, she will face many challenges, puzzles, and puzzles, accompanied by a small spirit named Ami. You will need to solve puzzles with the use of various elements (fire, water, wind, and earth). By manipulating the elements, you will be able to discover the mysteries of this land and Kara's back story. Kara's journey will begin from the snowy land of Fira. In order to get to the start point, Kara will need to solve puzzles based on the elements of earth, air, fire, and water. Earth Element: Create bridges with stones or built staircases with stones and gravel. Air Element: Build fences, so that the terrain can be used as a passage for other players to cross the land. Fire Element: Use fire to melt stones or burn forests. Water Element: Build dams, water towers, or repair the rivers, so that other players can pass over. You may also recruit the help of the small spirit, Ami, who will assist you in unlocking her backstory. Explore the land and try to find the pieces of puzzle that Kara might be missing. Feel free to talk to the people who live there. System Requirements: ----- Minimum Requirements:

StarDrone is developed using Unity and OpenVR. The game's striking visuals were created by the award-winning artistic talent at Tantalus Media. Gameplay elements were conceived in collaboration with Chris Kosis, a developer with years of experience in designing addictive games. The VR experience is coming early 2019 on Gear VR, Oculus Quest, Viveport, HTC Vive, Oculus Go, Samsung Gear, and Windows Mixed Reality. Give a warm welcome to our newest UploadVR Game of the Week: TalVale! Be sure to check out TalVale on Steam and Oculus Home where available or follow the links below. For more information on TalVale, including a trailer, visit the TalVale website! TalVale is about to embark on a journey to become a self-sustaining city in a high-fantasy, post-apocalyptic world ravaged by a deadly, world-destroying virus. The game features a fast-paced battle system, a deep crafting system, and an engaging story. By fighting, crafting, recruiting, and building your family and followers, you can gather power, unlock new skills and abilities, and rebuild your destroyed city. You might even be able to take down a dragon. The chance to win some awesome virtual prizes has been brought to you by Sony PlayStation VR and an Echo Zone Media production of scenes “The Collapse of ‘Tal Vale’”. Click on the Echo Zone Media banner below to watch these scenes: TalVale will launch on PlayStation VR on May 2nd. For an exclusive early look at TalVale, join the community and join one of our early access programs. If you’d like to go deeper, check out our TalVale wiki, which includes in-depth developer commentary. Follow us on social media for more information about TalVale: awesome folks at Tantalus Media also have a few videos to share on their website here: The demo consists of four stages and a Boss Fight. You start by exploring the environment and the nearby village. At the end of each stage you are prompted to pick between two quests. In the first quest you find a village hidden behind a wall. c9d1549cdd published:12 Feb 2018 views:824519 The area of my country that I am from is called Maghreb, but that name doesn't really have a solid translation. In English it is usually called the land of the NorthAfrica. But, it's a very vague name, and it is a very wide tag to cover a huge area of people and land, with also a broad time of evolution. Not at all a very practical definition. If I talk about it on a global level, then I should say that it is a land in which several cultures converge: Arab, black African, Berber, Spanish, French and Turkish. It's also the home of the Roman-Berber historian-legendist Tariq Ibn Ziyad. It's where the first man in the world served the word of Allah by the light of only that he possessed: the Prophet Muhammad. To kill people of other faiths and to take their stuff to own as yours is the normal status of this area.

And, in this time of social media cross-sensory sensationalism, people love to share their "discoveries". But, what if you just found out that you were wrong? What if it turned out that our languages or countries have never been some other way than the way we thought they were? Well, in this episode, we take a look on a concrete example in which the etymology, as well as the whole understanding of a language and its history, might be wrong. We take German, and we try Charlotta has a thirst for independence and seems to be growing fond of the freedom that comes with it. This is how she finds a promising and high-tech system that she can adjust to her needs and help the system grow. The system is called H.E.A.R.N.A., while Charlotta is called Charlotta. System Overview H.E.A.R.N.A. features a unique system that allows every citizen to possess and upgrade their own weapons, battle scopes, shields, energy projectors, armor sets and overall performance. This makes it possible to create a lethal combat unit made up of citizens who are best suited for the conditions in the game. At the start of the game, Charlotta has decided to equip the citizens of H.E.A.R.N.A. with combat utility equipment. H.E.A.R.N.A. is a suit of game options that are accessible in various ways and settings, all leading to Charlotta's individual development. The UI is fully integrated and divided according to various selection functions that can be toggled via the 'T' button. Players can also use the '4' button to switch the UI to an even smaller version of the mainscreen for creating a personal combat unit. On the left side of the screen you'll find the weapon, shield and power settings, while the right side provides you with information on your overall performance. H.E.A.R.N.A. is further divided into four design sections and allows both the user and the AI to change the design of their weapons, battle scopes, shields, and energy projectiles.

Elements Characterisation Every citizen has his or her own, personal set of traits and characteristics. The player can fine-tune the elements of each characteristic such as their speed, skill levels and their ability to use certain weapons and tool items.

Signature weapon You can equip your citizens with up to ten signature weapons. Every weapon has its own unique look, emblem and function. For example, while the Solar laser can be used for both short and long-range combat, the Lasergun and the Mini Laser are both used for close range combat.

Skill Tree All of your citizens have their own
