Q: Trading futures from "the self" vs. "by someone else" In this answer the user Sam mentions two ways of trading futures: With your self for self, something like buying a bitcoin when you want to do the trading Using someone else when you just want to collect the gains. So you have to trade futures with your self to do the trading itself. However it seems to me that you can use someone else for the sake of doing the trading yourself. e.g., one might be helping someone to buy bitcoin, just to make a profit by selling the bitcoin later. A: Probably my brain misinterprets this When you say self trading, your probably mean that you would trade with your self like a self employed stock broker. Your probably don't mean that you would trade with yourself. When you use someone else trading you are not trading with your self, you are paying another entity to carry out the transaction with you. /* * Licensed to the Apache Software Foundation (ASF) under one * or more contributor license agreements.
