Cryptography and Network Security .. 13.2 Digital Signature 3 Access Control 1.9 SECURITY ATTACKS There are four main categories. The first is the attacks that lie in wait for us when interacting with computers. The second is attacks on network protocols and services. The third is the theft of keys and passwords. And finally, the last, most dangerous category is attacks on computer hardware. But let's not get distracted by this last category. We will now focus our attention on the first. If we are going to interact with computers, we must take security measures.
