Gunday Full ((TOP)) Movie 2014 Bengali Version

in later years, dubbing engineers have become so skilled that they can lip-sync simultaneously with the speaker, as well as sometimes carry out certain portions of the dialogue where required, such as the name of a hotel, or conversation with his accomplice, as a part of the dialogue. apart from the sound stage of the bengali film industry, the theatre, rehearsal studios and voice coaches have also come into their own. rehearsal studios are widely used for dubbing. for a new song, the recording part is done in the studio and a playback singer is then asked to record the same song over again. this process goes on and on until the stage and lip-syncing are perfect. although it has an international market, i think the bengali film industry will never be able to survive in isolation. the audience for bengali movies, which has always been built upon, has to understand hindi, english, tamil and malayalam. a part of this audience lives outside the country, but a large part of it is within. i don't know if bengali dubbing makes sense as in the light of changing demographics. there is hardly any official support for the bengali language and the unesco or any other international body doesn't give it any official status. why should we, who are developing as a nation, not speak our own language? hindi, english and other regional languages like tamil and malayalam have global markets. i think the time has come to also look at the bengali cinema. good acting, good direction, good script and narration, good cinematography is what make a film watchable. cinematography skills in the language know-how department vary, but it's not the bengali version that is so impressive. on the contrary, it's the hindi version.
