The more eyes that see your name, the more value you provide to your prospects. If your push marketing is working, youll notice an immediate effect. A larger percentage of customers will call, email and purchase from your website. And based on the type of product you offer, you may also notice a surge in additional traffic from search engine results (if you have one). But the second objective is to keep them. Push marketing builds brand loyalty. And in the long term, this loyal customer base will have a better life and culture of repeat purchases. Add the -p option and pass a comma-separated list of arguments. The first argument must be the path where the file you want to copy should be copied. The next argument determines the remote host that the file should be copied to. And the final arguments determine the amount of time to wait before the file is completed copying. This flag, of course, can be used with other flags, such as the -r flag, to ensure that the file is backed up properly to the destination host.
