I have been able to find the list of words that are not in the dictionary, but not the count. I know I can go in using a csv and get the words, but there is like a million things to count there. So is there anyway to count the number of words? A: Something like this should do what you need: from collections import defaultdict mydict = {'word1','word2','word3','word4','word5','word6','word7','word8'} for word in open('my_file').read().split(): if word in mydict: word_count = defaultdict(int) word_count[word] += 1 else: word_count[word] = 1 print(word_count) You can also use defaultdict to avoid having to check the dictionary every time. And this was not the first time. U.S. Air Force Capt. Michael Fanning, 31, was killed after his plane was shot down around 5:30 a.m. local time on Saturday. He is the first American to be killed in the contested South China Sea in nearly four years. Fanning was flying an OV-10 Bronco belonging to the U.S. Air Force's 347th Expeditionary Combat Support Squadron. "I've never been in a plane shot down. It's an incredible feeling," Fanning said at the time, according to USA Today. Police try
